'Summertime, And The Livin' Is Easy'

SHE'S HAD A FACE LIFT!

Bartlett Lake's Top-Deck Party Boat Has New Look

Although she looks newer and brighter, thanks to her recent "wrap," the top-deck party boat at Bartlett Lake offers the same kind of fun and convenience that she always has.

A group of our family and friends recently braved the July heat and spent the better part of a day cruising beautiful Bartlett Lake, picnicking aboard, and swimming in the cool water. As usual, the young ones (and the "young at heart") delighted in plummeting down the boat's water slide into the lake.

Although most of us are Arizona residents, we also had on board guests from Glasgow, Scotland, and from Colorado. They all said this time on the party boat was an excellent way to beat Arizona's summer heat.

So, if you have not yet booked this experience, we urge you to try it - with family, with friends, with a group from your club or organization or office. Have an onboard party, complete with all the amenities you'll ever need.

This two-story, 45-foot pontoon yacht is ideal for large parties looking for a great day at the lake.

Here are the details:

- 25 passengers
- · Top deck with patio furniture
- · Sliding board
- · Restroom
- · Bar with sink
- Barbeque grill
- · Life jackets

Hours are from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. For reservations, rate, and availability, call (602) 316.3378.

 ${f NEW\ LOOK}$ —The top-deck party boat at Bartlett Lake has a new look. Arizona Color has given the cruise boat a facelift, and, as you can see, this good-looking "girl" is ready to party. Contact Bartlett Lake Marina for scheduling details: (602) 316-3378.

New Reporting Requirements For Boats Returning From Mexico

SeaTow Capt. Greg Dreishmeyer reports on the new reporting procedures for boats returning from Mexico. Boaters who do not touch land or receive assistance or contact another vessel are not required to report.

Who must report: Any boat, which has traveled to a foreign port or place, even if landfall was not made or contact was made with another vessel, must report. When a vessel is towed to the United States from Mexico, both the tow boat and the vessel must check in to Customs and Border Protection (CBP).

Where to report: Shelter Island Police dock for San Diego Bay and Dana Landing in Mission Bay. For vessels over 42 feet or that have a 50-foot vertical clearance or bigger will report to Shelter Island.

Boats over 130 feet, call San Diego

Harbor Police at 619-686-6272, eight hours in advance; once berthed call US Customs, day time 0600 to 1600 at 619-685-4304. After hours and weekends, call 619-550-9079.

Reporting procedure: For vessels being towed in by SeaTow, the procedure will be quick and simple. For starters, everyone on board should have an ID and a passport! Two forms of ID are required.

Upon being dispatched to Mexico, the SeaTow captain contacts CBP to alert them of the situation. This message will be related by CBP to the Mexican Navy as is required.

SeaTow will tow to the proper reporting station. Before berthing at the reporting station, the SeaTow captain will make contact again with CBP and advise of the ETA so that the customs agents will be at the dock waiting; this reduces the lag time checking in.

After SeaTow and the vessel under tow are cleared, SeaTow will continue the tow to the desired destination.

User Fee Decal is required: If any boat is registered or documented, 30 feet or more, it is required to have a CBP user fee red triangular decal. The decal is to be placed on the side of the vessel in a visible location

Go to https://dtops.cbp.dhs.gov to avoid a fine. Fill out the form and you will receive the sicker in the mail. A private pleasure boat is granted a cruising license under 19CFR4.94; it is not required to have a sticker.

For more information, contact John L.Campbell: johncinsd@gmail.com or (619) 991-5480.

'Designated Captain' Now Part of '11 Campaign

Eight months ago, the Lake Havasu Marine Association initiated Designated

Life Jackets

When preparing to go out on a boat, the operator should check that the safety equipment is on board.

- ◆ All boats, except sailboards and certain racing shells or rowing skulls, must have at least one wearable Type I, II, III, or V life jacket (PFD) that is U.S. Coast Guardapproved and of the proper size for each person on board. Sizing for life jackets (PFDs) is based on body weight and chest
- All life jackets (PFDs) must be in good and serviceable condition and must be readily ccessible
- In addition to the above requirements. vessels 16 feet in length or longer, except a anoe or kayak, must have one Type IV U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jacket (PFD) on board and readily accessible.
- All children 12 years of age and younger must wear a U.S. Coast Guard-approved Type I, II, or III life jacket (PFD) while underway on any veseel. The life jacket (PFD) must be fastened according to the manufacturer's recommended use and must fit the child properly.
- Each person on a PWC must wear a U.S. Coast Guard-approved Type I, II, or III life jacket; and all closures must be fastened according to the manufacturer's design or recommended use and must be adjusted for a snug fit.
 Each person being towed behind a boat
- on water skis or a similar device must wear a USCG-approved life jacket (PFD) or buoyant belt. Note, however, that buoyant belts are not aproved by the U.S. Coast

TYPE I: Offshore Life Jackets

These vests are geared for rough or remote waters where rescue may take awhile. They provide the most buoyancy, are excellent for flotation, and will turn most unconscious persons face up in the water.

TYPE II: Near-Shore Vests

These vests are good for calm waters when quick rescue is likely. A Type II may not turn some unconscious wearers face up in the water.

TYPE III: Flotation Aids These vests or full-sleeved jackets are good for calm waters when quick rescue is likely. They are not for rough waters since they will not turn most unconscious persons face up

TYPE IV: Throwable Devices

TYPE V: Special-Use Devices PFDs, and others are designed for specific activities such as windsurfing, kayaking, or water-skiing. To be acceptable, Type V PFDs must be used in accordance with Inflatable Life Jackets must have a full cylinder, green status indicators, and an accessible and intact lanyard or lever. Non-hybrid inflatable lifejackets (no foam) are only for persons at least 16 years old

Arizona Outdoor Hall Of Fame To Induct Five New Members

The Wildlife for Tomorrow Foundation, the charitable arm of the Arizona Game and Fish Department, will induct five new Arizona Outdoor Hall of Fame members at its 14th Annual Outdoor Hall of Fame Banquet at 6 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 27, at the Chaparral Suites Scottsdale

The three individuals and two groups that will be inducted into the Hall are the following:

Joe Melton

Melton's dedication to the wildlife conservation community is evident from the leadership roles he has held within that community. He was a member of the Arizona Game and Fish Commission for five years after his appointment in 2002 by then-Governor Jane Hull.

He served two years as president of the Arizona Trappers Association and 10 years as the state director for the National Trappers Association. He also served several terms as president of the Yuma Valley Rod and Gun Club and was on the Arizona Wildlife Conservation Council.

Roger Appleby
Roger "Buck" Appleby (posthumously) — Mr. Appleby was a legendary hunter education instructor in the Yuma area who participated in the program for more than 20 years. He led or took part in more than 150 classes, teaching well over 1,000 students about hunting, wildlife conservation, outdoor ethics and firearm safety.

He became the chief hunter education instructor for the Yuma area in 1997. He also served on the board of directors of the Yuma Valley Rod and Gun Club. Since his passing in January of 2011, his spirit continues to inspire the hunting and conservation community.

Antonio Perri

Antonio "Tony" Perri (posthumously) Mr. Perri was a strong supporter of outdoor recreation and wildlife conservation and was affiliated with Ducks Unlimited, Anglers United, and the Arizona Wildlife Federation. He played an instrumental role in the Saguaro Lake Habitat Improvement Projects in 1989 and 1993

FIVE TO BE HONORED — The Wildlife for Tomorrow Foundation, will induct five new Arizona Outdoor Hall of Fame mem-bers at its 14th Annual Outdoor Hall of Fame Banquet on Saturday, Aug. 27. One group to be honored is the Adobe Mountain Wildlife Center volunteers. The center. established by the Arizona Game and Fish Department in 1983 was the first state-operated wildlife treatment and education center in the country. Dedicated volunteers provide emergency treatment to sick, injured and orphaned native wildlife, and present educational and public outreach programs to schools and events statewide.

and in the Lake Havasu Project in 1992. He received numerous awards, including the Ducks Unlimited Sportsman of the Year in 1986, the Arizona Wildlife Federation Conservation Achievement Award for Fisheries and Water Conservation in 1992, and the dedication of the Perri Marsh in Cibola National Wildlife Refuge in 2001.

Arizona Antelope Foundation

The Arizona Antelope Foundation The AAF was established in 1992 and is dedicated to the welfare of pronghorn antelope populations through habitat improvements, habitat acquisition, the translocation of animals to historic range and public comment on activities affecting pronghorn and their habitat.

AAF volunteers work actively to educate the public and assist in the conservation of this species. The group has worked on numerous projects to benefit pronghorn and other wildlife, including collaborative efforts to restore grasslands and the Cienega wetlands on Anderson Mesa, and collaborative work in support of the department's acquisition of Horseshoe Ranch

Adobe Mountain Wildlife Center Volunteers

The Adobe Mountain Wildlife Center Volunteers. The Adobe Mountain Wildlife Center was established by the Mountain Arizona Game and Fish Department in It was the first state-operated wildlife treatment and education center in the country.

Although managed by one full-time employee and one part-time student intern from the department's Wildlife Education Program, the center relies almost entirely upon volunteers to operate. These dedicated volunteers provide emergency treatment to sick, injured and orphaned native wildlife, and present educational and public outreach programs to schools and events statewide.

Last year their outreach efforts reached more than 109,000 children and adults in Arizona

The Arizona Outdoor Hall of Fame was developed in 1998 by the Wildlife for Tomorrow Foundation to honor those who have made significant contributions to Arizona's wildlife, the welfare of its natural resources, and the state's outdoor heritage.

Some Prior Inductees

Recognition is given to individuals and organizations that have worked consistently over many years through political and individual leadership, volunteer service, the mass media, conservation efforts, or educational activities on behalf of Arizona's natural and wildlife resources. Prior inductees include Ben Avery, Barry Goldwater, Mo Udall, Larry Toschik, Tom Woods and many conservation and sportsmen's groups active in the state, as well as conservation-minded companies such as Arizona Public Service and Salt River Project.

Selected By Wildlife For Tomorrow Foundation

Selections for induction are made each year by the board of directors of the Wildlife for Tomorrow Foundation. Selections are made from a list of nominations that are submitted, including those submitted by members of the public.

"This year's class of inductees is as diverse and well qualified as the classes we've honored in the past several years," said WFT Foundation President Steve Hirsch. "The Foundation strives to honor those who have meant a lot to our Arizona outdoor and wildlife heritage, but who generally don't always receive the spotlight and accolades.

"The annual Hall of Fame banquet is a great social occasion where our supporters from birdwatchers to bird hunters come together to celebrate these deserving inductees and help the Foundation raise funds toward our mission of enhancing the productive management, protection and enjoyment of Arizona's fish and wildlife resources.'

Open To The Public

The Arizona Outdoor Hall of Fame Induction Banquet is open to the public. Tickets are $70 and may be purchased through Ticket Chairman Duane Wellnitz, 14203 S. Carbon Monoxide Poisoning: Know The Signs

From AZGFD

Carbon monoxide poisoning is also known as the "silent killer." It is a color-less, odorless, tasteless gas that is very toxic even in small quantities.

It is produced when a carbon fuel, such as gasoline or diesel is burned.

Carbon monoxide disperses freely through the air and will travel readily throughout a boat. It is discharged as engine, generator, or appliance exhaust may re-enter your boat through any opening.

Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning are throbbing temples, inattentiveness of lack of concentration, inability to think coherently, ringing in the ears, tightness across the chest, headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, fatigue, vomiting, collapse, and convulsions.

Protect yourself from the silent killer and download and take with you the car-bon monoxide brochure — available at http://www.azgfd.gov/outdoor_recreation/BoatingEducationCategorypage.sht

WHAT A SUMMER SO FAR!

But, The Fish Are Still Biting

By Jim Harken ("The Fishing Guru in Training")
AZGFD

Hello once again friends! I gladly take the reins of the Fishing Report from Rory the Fishing Guru for a couple weeks while he is off playing in the mountains. He says he has to work, but I don't think this has ever been work to Rory!

Summer 2011

Fires, rain and dust, Oh my! Is it just me or has the weather just been crazy this summer so far?

On a serious note, [at press time], the wildlfires are mostly under control, and we feel for those who lost homes or were displaced for any length of time. What an ordeal; I can't even imagine and they say it might not be over yet for this season. Come on monsoons [without lightning,

The rains have begun pretty much in earnest in many places across the state and we pray they don't wash too much junk into the lakes, rivers and streams.

You might want to call ahead to wherever you are heading to make sure it's open and that fish are viable.

Dust Storm 2011

And now, those of us in the Valley have lived through what they are calling "Dust Storm 2011." Royal Norman, our weather friend at Channel 3, says this is one for the record books!

I got to wash both my cars the next morning just so we could see out the windows to drive to work. They looked as if they had been sitting there for 100 years. What a mess!

Luckily a dust storm [even one a mile high and 100 miles wide] doesn't hurt the fishing prospects too much.

Extra Trout Stocked

As of July 7, the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forest has opened back up the water areas that were closed on the Sitgreaves side because of the Wallow Fire. Woods Canyon and Willow Springs Lakes are open as well, and the fishing has been pretty decent.

I'm told the rain up there hasn't ruined too much by way of fishing, but some run off is being reported. Show Low Lake, Fool Hollow Lake and Scotts Reservoir have all received lots of extra trout that we couldn't stock in other waters because of forest closures due to fires. I hear it's kind of like fishing in your bathtub in some

Where Are The Northern Pike?

I was asked at a recent off-highway vehicle information event where a person could fish for northern pike in Arizona. After his buddies got done laughing at him, I was able to promote Upper Lake Mary as one of the best places in Arizona to try for them. Walleye, catfish, yellow perch, and my favorite, largemouth bass are all in season round those parts this time of year. Old reliable Kinnickinick Lake is hopping right now too. So give it a chance.

Some Other Possibilities

With the rain, the barometer has been dropping recently. When that happens, those trout just love to move. You can probably get some good bites at sunrise and toward sunset. If you want to take home something to really be proud of, try Becker Lake in Springerville. You might catch a record there!

After a new moon turns to a little sliver in the sky, there is a period of great nighttime fishing. Use the submersible lights and use small bait.

Feel free to chum a bit to get the interest going. Hungry fish will flock to where you are. Lake Pleasant can be neat after dark with all the wildlife that comes down for a drink as well as the local herd of bur-

Dust 'Might'

Watch out when driving out there after dark and make sure you wear your life-jacket when out on the water.

If the heat in the Valley is too much, Lees Ferry is always a great trip — excellent fishing, not a lot of people, and some fun places to stay while you are up there. As always, I recommend the breakfast at Lees Ferry Lodge; of course all their food is great, but I especially love the breakfast! Say Hi to Charlie from me when you stop

Let Us Know

If you are out and about, let us know at "Been Fishing?" at bfishing@azgfd.gov and we'll share your story in the weeks to come. You don't have to give away your special hiding spot, but it's always neat to hear about someone's success. After all, they do call it fishing, not catching!

Arizona 'GUN MAP' Now Available

A first-of-its-kind "GUN MAP" is available now in Arizona, to inform the public where shooting is legal, for training and safety purposes. The 3-foot-by-2-foot full-color map identifies more than 60 spots in the state where target practice is legally sanctioned and encouraged.

The ranges include both indoor and outdoor facilities.

Arizona, which has enacted Constitutional Carry, freeing every law-abiding in the state to bear arms discreetly or openly without government interference, is encouraging everyone to learn how to shoot safely, to practice those skills, and to enjoy the shooting sports.

Shooting ranges are where the American tradition of marksmanship is practiced, and contribute to preparedness and economic strength.

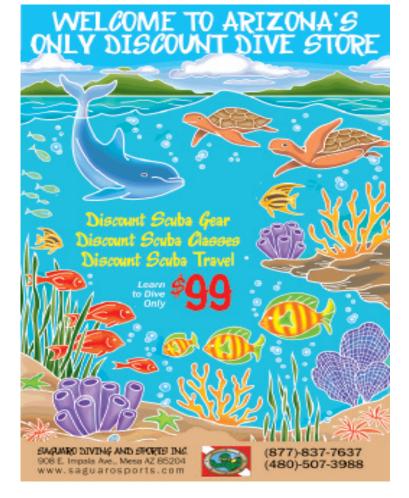

The shooting sports are the #2 participant sport in the nation, ahead of golf, according to the National Sporting Goods Association, the trade group for the industry. Despite its popularity, it receives less mainstream news attention than other lesser sports. http://www.nsga.org/i4a/pages/index.cfm?pageid=3507 The GUN MAP has been funded in large part by sponsors of the TrainMeAZ.com campaign. TrainMeAZ is a statewide effort to increase firearms safety by getting all law-abiding citizens to shooting ranges for training, now that government no longer forces people to take classes for discreet carry.

It is sponsored by the state's fairly robust firearms industry. The program itself is widely endorsed (see Web site for details, and testimonials ranging from state legislators to the CATO Institute).

Whether you own a gun or not, it is common sense to understand firearms safety and marksmanship, the same as you would water safety, even if you have no

LAKE POWELL REPORT Fishing Still Good As Temperatures Warm

From this point forward many of the reports will be about surface feeding by striped bass. Here are some terms that will make it easier for you to understand my reports.
"Slurps" are defined as surface feeding

by stripers of all sizes on very small larval shad. Tiny shad are poor swimmers. There is not much chance of their eluding stripers that line up with open mouths and skim the surface sucking in shad as they go

The scrimmage line moves along at high speed (3-5 mph). Slurpers go down when the boat gets in range but then resurface in random directions. If they come up near the boat, stripers are easier to catch. If they surface well out of range, the boat must be quickly repositioned to get in casting range again.

Slurping stripers can be fussy eaters because their prey is so small. The feeding school can move in just about any direction as larval shad are commonly found in most open water areas.

Fishing success in slurps requires precision casting. A lure tossed into the scrimmage line will spook the whole school or be ignored by fish looking straight ahead. But a lure cast well in front of the first fish and worked back into the scrimmage line will be seen and some-

Slurps have begun lakewide but colder water temperatures have delayed catching success. Slurps are seen each day from Wahweap to Bullfrog. Wind erases the trail making it difficult to find slurpers, but in calm periods keep an eye out for the Yamaha Motor Corp., U.S.A., the motorsports company most involved in the outdoors, is continuing its sponsorship of National Hunting and Fishing Day, the official federal commemoration of hunters, anglers and conservation since Congress established the day in 1972.

The Not-Too-Young Man And The Sea 850-Pound Blue Marlin Fish Story

By Paul Caronna

This is a fish story much like The Old Man and the Sea except I wasn't very old.

I had always loved to fish; from the age of five, my father used to take me to Ocean Park pier in Santa Monica to fish for perch and mackerel etc. At that young age, only two things got my attention: fishing and cars. So as the years went by, my dad and I fished all the time.

He passed away when I was 13, and I thought fishing would be over. However, my mom knew how much I loved to fish, and she would take me down to the Redondo Beach pier and I would fish all day and sometimes I would go out on the barge Sacramento. Man, that was great - lots of

First Hotels, Restaurants In Costa Rica Support Billfish Conservation Initial group of Central American hotels, resorts and restaurants set example for others in promoting sportfishing ecotourism by taking sailfish and marlin off their menus.

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. — The Bill-fish Foundation (TBF) entered into an agreement with its conservation partner, the Costa Rica Sport Fishing Federation (FE-COPT) and four participating Hilton Worldwide hotels in Costa Rica, pledging to stop serving all sailfish and marlin.

Because of a socio-economic study released last year by TBF showing the huge economic value of sportfishing tourism to Costa Rica, the participating hotels adopted the ban on billfish from their restaurants in part to promote responsible and sustainable tourism in the nation.

The four properties include the Double-Tree Resort by Hilton Costa Rica in Puntarenas, the DoubleTree Cariari by Hilton San Jose, the Hilton Papagayo Costa Rica Resort and Spa, and the Hilton Garden Inn Liberia Airport. The bold conservation move with the hotels and resorts came after two months of discussions with FECOPT Executive Director Enrique Ramirez

"TBF is proud of the efforts by Enrique Ramirez who secured the participation of the four participating Hilton Worldwide properties in Costa Rica and explained the conservation and business benefits of the world's sportfishing tourists, reaffirming Costa Rica's stature as one of the world's premier fishing destinations," noted TBF Chief Scientist Dr. Russell Nelson. "We specially appreciate the foresight of the general managers at the participating Hilton

Worldwide hotels in Costa Ricardo Ro-Gil, Laura Rica driguez Castagnini and Dominguez — that supporting sportfishing conservation efforts are good for the oceans and good for business as well."

"The participating Hilton Worldwide ho-tels in Costa Rica are leading the way for Costa Rica's tourism industry to move toward new levels of support for sportfishing conservation practices," said FECOPT's Ramirez. "Using the impetus of our agreement with the participating properties we look forward to partnering with sustainable tourism tour leader Horizontes to let this precedent spread across the nation's tourism TBF President Ellen Peel applauded the agreement as a new standard for voluntary conservation action in the private sector adding, "We're very pleased to see tourism businesses and government tourism officials responding so positively to the facts and information presented by our socio-economic research conducted with the University of Costa Rica that clearly supports TBF's message that good conservation can be good conservation; be good economics.

TBF has been working with govern-ments such as Costa Rica, Mexico, Peru and Panama to protect billfish, mainly from overfishing coastal fisheries by commercial interests, while implementing tag and re-lease programs for sportsmen. Herbert Nanne of San Jose serves as TBF's Central

Dove Hunters Will Find It Simpler This Year

New state law opens up tracts of undeveloped public lands within municipalities.

PHOENIX — Thanks to new laws passed by the Arizona Legislature this past session and actions by the Arizona Game and Fish Commission on Saturday, June 25, dove hunters will find it simpler this year determining where it is legal to hunt after the season opens Sept. 1.

Senate Bill 1334 prohibits municipalities and counties from enacting any or-dinance, rule or regulation limiting the take of wildlife during an open season es-tablished by the Arizona Game and Fish Commission.

SB1334 also amends state law (Arizona Revised Statutes 13-3107) by permitting the discharge of a firearm within the limits of any municipality while lawfully taking wildlife during an open season established by the Game and Fish Commission. This new law takes effect

However, nothing in SB1334 prohibits municipalities from regulating the discharge of firearms within a quarter mile of occupied structures.

Decisions Up To AZGFD
Basically, these new laws leave the decision making of where people can legally hunt in the experienced hands of the Arizona Game and Fish Commission. But hunters can't expect carte blanche the Game and Fish Commission is taking a conservative, thoughtful approach in its deployment of these shifted or modified authorities

"It's a balancing act. We wanted to maximize hunting opportunity while at the same time minimizing potential conflicts, said Commission Chairman Robert Woodhouse, who is from Yuma, "We also considered geo-political realities, recognizing that one size does not necessarily fit all within the various municipal boundaries, as each locale is unique."

For instance, based on the department's studied evaluation, the Game and Fish Commission has closed a well-defined densely populated core area within the Valley of the Sun to hunting.

The boundaries of this area, which crosses multiple municipal boundaries, are well defined by major roadways, making it much simpler for hunters, mu-nicipal leaders and law enforcement officers to determine where hunting is legal. The Base and Meridian wildlife area and a couple of small county islands within this closure area will remain open to hunting dove with shotgun shooting shot. All restrictions in Arizona Revised Statutes Title 17 (the state game laws) apply, such as not hunting within 1/4 mile of an occupied building and not shooting from or across a roadway.

In addition, municipal hunt management units created by the commission, such as those in the Valley of the Sun, Tucson and Flagstaff, also impose certain restrictions on hunting, especially for the use of firearms while taking wildlife. For instance, within the greater Phoenix metropolitan units, the legal firearms for hunting doves are restricted to the use of shotguns, shooting shot.

Mourning Dove

Unanimously Approved

The first commission order adopted since the passage of this law establishes the 2011 season on dove, which is a migratory bird that also falls under certain federal hunting constraints and guidelines. The commission unanimously approved the dove season at its June 25 meeting.

Leonard Ordway, assistant director for the Field Operations Division, pointed out that in the past, dove hunters those in the Valley of the Sun where there are lots of different municipal boundaries to contend with - often found it difficult or sometimes even impossible to determine where one could legally hunt dove.

Ordway said the change in the law will make it easier for dove hunters to determine where they can hunt, and will also once again open up tracts of uninhabited and undeveloped public and State Trust land within municipalities to hunting. "For example, hunters will find the re-turn of hunting opportunities on those large areas of open land that have been annexed but won't be developed for years, or those highly productive yet un-posted agricultural lands within municipalities," he said.

Ordway said this is especially important for families. "This new approach to hunting in municipalities makes it simpler for parents to take their youngsters hunting, quite often closer to home, so they can re-connect with nature. This is truly a quality of life improvement for outdoor families now, and will help in passing on the hunting and out-door tradition to future generations."

Working Closely Together

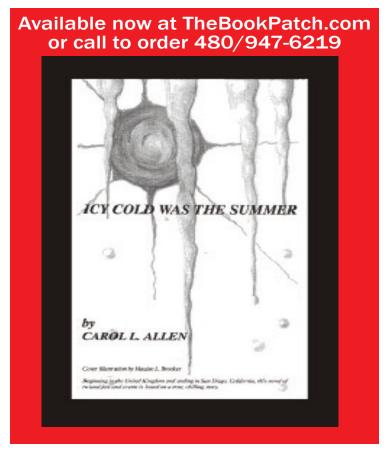

The commission and department will be working closely with counties, municipalities, chiefs of police and other major stakeholders to continue taking a thoughtful and cooperative approach to hunting within mu-

"In the past, chiefs of police had the authority to approve or to close areas to dis-charge of firearms, thus closing what would otherwise be lawful hunting within municipal boundaries," said Commissioner John W. Harris, a veteran law enforcement officer who is currently the police chief of Sahuarita. "Even though such authority with regard to hunting has shifted to the capable hands of the Game and Fish Commission, the commission and the department will work closely with chiefs of police and other municipal leaders to thoughtfully and properly address concerns

Keep in mind that the dove commission order is just the first step. In August, the commission will consider recommendations for modifying all the commission orders so these new laws and authorities can

Six Safety Tips For Camping

Whether in Arizona's high country or desert areas. these make safety sense.

By Romona Weston

We are a family of campers and hikers! Experiencing the true outdoors with your family can be one of the most rewarding experiences you can undertake.

As with many ventures, a safe and successful camping trip requires effective planning. To ensure your planned mountain hike doesn't end up being memorable for the wrong reasons, pay attention to the six safety tips below.

1. Know your limits – and the risks.

You may have romantic notions of a Cody Lundin-style primitive survival adventure (best-selling author on survival and preparedness) but if you don't have the experience or training, it is advisable to start small. A family of novice campers should wet their feet with a day trip while more experienced families might opt for a few days or a week in the great outdoors.

Children are particularly vulnerable to danger. Younger children have underdeveloped sweat glands so their temperature regulation is poor. Keep them out of the sun during the hottest part of the day.

It is vitally important that children do not get separated from you; try to educate them in the importance of remembering landmarks as they walk, and teach them to use the universal distress call, three loud noises or blows of a whistle, should they get lost. Older children could attend a map-reading course prior to travel.

All hikers are vulnerable to exposure to the elements, whether heat, cold, rain or wind, if sufficient shelter isn't available or if inappropriate clothing is worn.

2. Pack the right clothing and equipment.

Inexperienced hikers may not appreciate the way in which weather conditions can rapidly deteriorate, especially at high altitude. Storms can strike at any time of the year, and temperatures can plummet without warning in the spring and fall, especially at night.

Dressing in layers is the solution for hiking, so make sure you pack plenty of clothes. Long-sleeved sweaters and shirts and tank tops, made of polyester, polypropylene or wool are recommended, and lightweight waterproof pants and coats are essential. Pack caps or hats for the whole family, especially the children, and ensure you are all fitted out in quality hiking shoes; there are few things more unbearable than attempting a grueling hike with blistered feet.

Equipment generally considered as essential are a tent; ground insulation, sleeping bags, a topographical map, compass, flashlight with extra batteries and bulbs, plenty of water, sunglasses and sun cream, insect repellent, a first aid kit, pocketknife, candles or a fire starter, matches (either waterproof or in a waterproof container), a small saw, blankets, duct tape, nylon rope and various emergency means of signaling (e.g., cell phone, whistles, flares,

Choose your campground carefully.

There are a few things to think about before setting up camp. Is the area prone to flooding? If so, ensure you pick an elevated spot.

Are there any wild berries? Don't place your tent too close to them or foraging bears might pay you an unwelcome visit.

Are there any signs of fire-pits you can use? If it is dry season, forego the fire-pit altogether as the risk of sparking a fire is too great.

Try not to pick a spot too close to trees, in case one should fall overnight.

Keep food packed away in the car overnight, in animal-resistant boxes, to avoid attracting animals.

4. Don't drink the water.

As long as you pack plenty of drinking water, you shouldn't have to drink from natural water sources. It is safest to assume that any water you come across is likely to have been contaminated by animals. The water-living parasite, Giardia lamblia, is a common menace to unwary hikers, causing unpleasant digestive complaints

If you do have to drink river or stream water, be sure to boil it first, if at all possible. Water can also be purified by iodine tablets, so add some to your travel kit.

Bring extra food.

It may seem obvious, but pack more food than you think you will need, in case of emergencies. Portable foods such as trail mix and fruit are recommended, as is dehydrated food if you can get hold of it; it saves valuable kit space and you need only add water.

Foraging for your own food is unwise unless you are an expert in identifying what is safe to eat. Inexperienced campers run the risk of misidentifying berries and mushrooms, leading to illness or worse

6. Protect your family from animals, insects and poisonous plants. Children should be warned that wild animals are not to be approached, no matter how cute and cuddly they appear. If biting insects are around, pants should be tucked into socks and insect repellent applied.

Citronella-based repellent can be applied to clothing or DEET-containing re-pellents can be used, although the latter is toxic to the skin and must not be used on children under two years of age. Check each other daily for tics, some of which carry Lyme disease.

Finally, try not to touch any unfamiliar plants; the oils can cause allergic reac-tions. Calamine lotion, or 1 percent hydrocortisone cream, can be applied to ease the itching caused by some plant oils, including the poison ivy.

Following these tips will guarantee you and your family are well on the way to a safe and, hopefully, a wonderful camping experience. Have fun!

Good News For Outdoor Recreationists: Several Forest Closures Lifted Access is re-opened to Big Lake and other popular areas.

From AZGFD

At press time, there's good news for anglers, campers and others who like to recreate in high country areas that had been closed due to the Wallow Fire and other area fire concerns. The Apache-Sitgreaves National Forests has re-opened several popular areas of the forests to public use.

The Sitgreaves National Forest closure order affecting areas, roads and trails in the Black Mesa and Lakeside Ranger Districts and the Promontory Butte area was lifted as of noon July 7.

Stage 1 fire restrictions are currently in effect across the Sitgreaves portion of the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forests. These restrictions prohibit fires, campfires, and use of charcoal, coal or wood stoves cept in fire grills and grates provided by the Forest Service in developed recreation sites. Use of gas-fueled stoves, lanterns or heating devices is allowed. Smoking is not allowed except within an enclosed vehicle or building.

The Apache National Forest closure order for several major recreation areas was lifted at noon July 8, including Big Lake, Crescent Lake and the adjacent developed campgrounds; the Greer lakes and the nearby developed campgrounds Valley and Winn Campground, Nelson Reservoir, and Luna Lake.

The specific areas opened in the Alpine and Springerville Ranger Districts include the following:

Big Lake and Crescent Lake Recreation Areas including Big Lake boat ramps and parking areas, Big Lake Visitor's Center; Big Lake Administrative Site, Big Lake store and marina, South Cove boat ramp and parking area, Railroad Cove boat ramp and parking area. Current access to Big Lake is by Highway 273 only (Sunrise Highway) as Highway 261 is still closed and unsafe for motor vehicle use due to damaged guardrails.

Greer Lakes Day Use Area including the following: Greer Lakes picnic area, Greer Lakes boat ramps and parking areas, Bunch Reservoir, River Reservoir, and Tunnel Reservoir.

Lee Valley Reservoir Day Use Area including the following: boat ramp and parking area, and the lake itself.

Rolfe C. Hoyer and Benny Creek Campgrounds and Squirrel Springs Picnic Area, Winn Campground, Springerville Ranger Station, Alpine Ranger Station.

Luna Lake Day Use including the following: boat ramps and parking areas, Luna Lake Store and Marina, and the lake itself.

Nelson Reservoir Day Use Area including the following: north end boat ramp, north end parking area, fishing piers, NFS land underlying Nelson Reservoir, and the lake itself.

Stage 2 fire restrictions will remain in place, which means that no campfires will be allowed, even in developed campgrounds.

Lee Valley Reservoir, Luna Lake, Crescent Lake, and the three Greer lakes are for day use only.

THE BOAT GALLEY

Helping You Get The Most Out Of Your Boat's 'Kitchen'

Like to eat on your boat? Sure, we all do. It just adds to the fun! What's better than eating dinner and watching the sun set over the water — or an early morning, watching the birds with a cup of coffee and warm homemade coffeecake in hand?

But, turning these visions into reality involves overcoming some challenges in cooking aboard. There's less space for food and equipment, not to mention tight counter space.

There may be limited water and electrical power. The refrigerator — or lack thereof — may pose other challenges. There's no electric mixer, garbage disposal or dishwasher.

Most of us want cooking aboard to be pleasant, a part of the general fun aboard. And now there's a Web site to give you the answers you need, regardless of whether it's your first time cooking aboard or you're more experienced and looking for a solution to a particular problem.

TheBoatGalley.com is devoted to help-ing boaters get the most out of their kitchens. Written by Carolyn Shearlock, a former cruiser, articles focus on practical without prepared foods and electric appliances, with foods that store

The Boat Galley isn't a gourmet cooking site, or limited to recipes — although there are a few boat-friendly recipes. There's a wealth of information on how to store food on a boat, things to think about in choosing galley equipment, tips on dealing with a temperamental oven or stove, making your refrigerator or cooler more efficient, hand mixing, choosing the right water filter, staying cool in the galley, clearing a balky drain and more 150 articles to date and another one added every few days.

Can Historic Waverley Be Saved? Sadly, A Seagoing Steamer May Be Lost

On Aug. 22, 1787, John Fitch (1743-1798) made the first successful trial of a 45-foot steamboat on the Delaware River. This was possibly one of the greatest inventions of all time.

Goods could be carried be river instead of horse-drawn carts and reach their destinations more quickly, allowing for a greater profit to be made. Now, only one of these seagoing, paddle-steamer boats remains.

Waverley was built in 1947 to replace the original Waverley, which sank at Dunkirk. It was one of the last boats to be built in the great Clyde shipyards. There are now only a few battleships built on the Clyde because of its depth, but the area is rich with history.

The famous Royal Yacht Britannia, Queen Mary 2 and Queen Elizabeth 2 were all built there as well as countless other ships that sailed all around the world.

Waverley certainly has history, but she is 64 years old and even though renovated quite recently, she "eats" money. The last of the great steamboats will almost certainly be scrapped unless something is done quickly.

A visit to Glasgow, Scotland, is not quite complete without seeing the Waverly. It steams from the Clyde all around Britain and offers some of the best sights of the coast that are possible. It is hard to imagine ecutive director of the Lake Havasu Marine Association. "Designated Captain is targeting recreational boaters who desire to delegate the responsibility of operating a boat to an experienced, licensed and sober captain.'

Ken Samp, owner/operator of Sunset Charters and Tours in Lake Havasu City, is heading up this new program, which is being touted as a significant advancement toward safer boating practices by many local boat-rental facilities.

Captains Pool Established

A pool of qualified, Coast Guard-licensed captains has been established, offering their services on an hourly basis for safe and sober vessel piloting to recreational boaters, both rental and privately owned.

Prospective recreational boaters wanting this service are requested to contact Ken Samp by phone or e-mail to arrange captain reservation. Samp screens boaters and recommends captains who best suit the individual needs of the boater.

"We don't want boaters hiring just anyone to take the responsibility of operating their boat," commented Salscheider. "If you're going to turn the helm over to someone else, you want to be sure that the person is reliable, experienced and capable. With the Designated Captain program, boaters are assured that their captain for the day is qualified and sober.'

For additional information regarding Designated Captain, please contact Captain Ken Samp, (928) 716-8687, captainken@havasusunsetboattours.com, www.havasusunsetboattours.com

'Designated Operator' Campaign: A Success

According to initial reports from multiple law enforcement agencies who patrol the waters of Lake Havasu, the grass-roots, privately-funded Designated Operator safety campaign is making inroads and a difference with recreational boaters

During the traditionally busy Memorial Day weekend, Sgt. Jerry Burns of the Lake Havasu City Police was quoted in a local newspaper article, saying, "We've seen a lot of Designated [boat]Operators on the water." Burns also added that he attributed a portion of the increase to the influence of the voluntary sober-boating campaign launched earlier this year by the Lake Havasu Marine Association. Sgt. Doug Schuster of the Mohave County Sheriff's Office also commented in the same article, "We've made a lot of contacts with boaters and we're seeing a lot of designated operators in place. "It [was] a busy weekend and the crowds [were] up but not historically as busy as in years past.

Also echoing the sentiments of encountering fewer intoxicated boaters during the long holiday weekend was the San Bernardino County Sheriff-Coroner's Department. Corporal Marc Bracco from the Colorado River Station Marine Enforcement Unit noted only one rental-boat oper-ator was arrested for "boating under the influence" — fewer than in previous years during the same time period.

"We're encouraged by the preliminary reports from in-the-field water enforcement officers," said Jim Salscheider, executive director of the Lake Havasu Marine Association.

DO's Mission Supported By Many

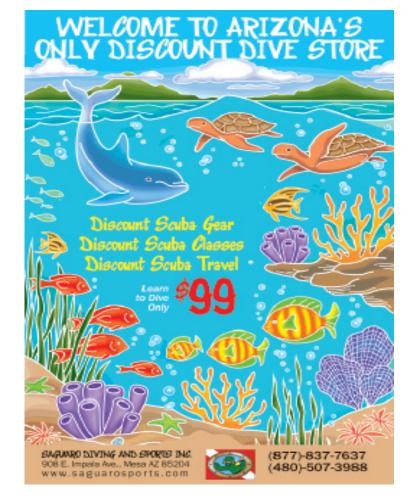

"Designated Operator's mission is to spread the word that sobriety is imperative whenever you're behind the wheel of a boat. The goal is to reduce the number of impaired boat operators and make our wa-terways safer and more enjoyable for everyone. With the support and input of our local law enforcement agencies, we're able to monitor the success of this campaign as the boating season progresses. We've just begun, but we're optimistic of making a real difference."

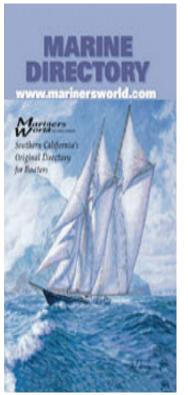

The Lake Havasu "Carry a Designated

Operator" campaign is co-sponsored by Romer Beverage Company of Lake Havasu and Teague Custom Marine, Valencia, California.

Supporting agencies and associations include: Arizona Game and Fish, Arizona State Parks, Bureau of Land Management, LakeRacer LLC/Desert Storm, Southern California Marine Association, London Bridge Yacht Club, Mohave County Sher-iffs, Lake Havasu City Police, and San Bernardino County Sheriff-Coroner Department. Participating restaurants/bars include Pirate Cove Resort, Havasu Springs Resort, Turtle Grille/Nautical Beachfront Resort and Topock 66.
"Carry a designated operator" was founded by the Lake Havasu Marine Association and is responsible for its implementation. More information about Designated Operator is available at www.lhcma.com.

that this may soon be gone.

I feel the possible loss perhaps more keenly because I have a personal link to Waverley. I am one of the descendants of John Fitch and I find it hard to imagine that his invention (even though he did not receive the full credit) should become a thing of past, never to be built again, only read about in history books. It is what is living that matters.

I have written this article as a petition. Can you help?

If Waverley does not have a good summer season, then she will almost certainly be decommissioned. She may be preserved but she may also be scrapped.

Can you save Waverley from her threatening fate? Can you help to preserve a piece of Scottish history? Can you preserve the creation of a great American? Please, help if you can

Off To Hawaii

Later in years, I decided to buy my own boat. Living in Torrance and close to the beach, I bought a 28-foot Tollycraft and fished Catalina and around the area but found no really big fish. So, thinking a bigger boat would bring bigger fish, I moved up to a 36-foot Drake, which didn't catch any larger fish!

Someone told me I should go to the big Island of Hawaii, as that's where the big blue marlin are caught, so I gave it a try.

Ted Elliott of Elliott boats told me to go see a Mr. Fran Weinberg who lived in Hawaii and had a 65-foot Elliott called Capricorn; maybe he would take me fish-

So I went to Hawaii and stayed for a year. In that time, Fran and I fished a lot and I learned all the tricks on how to catch the big blues. We fished and fished.

One day we caught a 650-pound blue and that was it — my new life had just begun. I got so excited about fishing for blues that, when I finally got back to California, I bought a bigger boat — a 53-foot Pacemaker called Challenge, a good name because it was a challenge just to keep fuel in her 12V71 engines — but that's another

Anyway, to make a long story short, I fished around Catalina for about 10 years and caught my share of fish strippers and a few swordfish; I even caught the first marlin of the year in Catalina three times in the

A Move To Cabo

I was ready to make a move and take the boat to Cabo along with my buddies Joel Faucetta and the owners of the Red Onion Restaurant in Newport Beach Rick and Steve Loomis. We took off and spent the season in Cabo, from March to June; that was a long time back in the late '70s.

There we caught a few blues in 500-pound class, and a few in the 600 and 700pound. Oh, and there was one 812-pound fish that is mounted in Pancho's restaurant in Manhattan Beach that the owner Abb Lawrence caught.

Well, Abb liked the Pacemaker boat so well and I had my eye on buying the boat I had fished in Hawaii that he ended up buying mine and it became Pancho.

I finally bought Capricorn and renamed it Challenge II. (You may have seen her trolling around Cabo trying to catch the big one that is something over 1000 pounds.)

I never did, but I did catch a fish with all the wrong things going on (see picture). The time was April 1983 with just my girl-friend Maryann Prall and me — no deck-

We had spent a few days at Frailes about 45 miles from Cabo and were just taking it easy when we decided to go back to Cabo. The weather was great - flat calm and about 85 degrees — so I swung the boat to the outside of Gordo Bank about 25 miles offshore, hoping to catch a wahoo or tuna

The Big One!

We were just relaxing when all of a sudden one of the jigs went off. I looked back but no fish. So, a moment later, here it came a big, and I mean big, fin behind the

It took the wahoo purple and black jig and ran out about 600 yards of line. Maryann grabbed the pole and said she didn't feel anything.

Just then, the fish came up, jumping next to the boat. I knew it was big but how big was unknown at the time. Maryann said, "You take it; I'll never be able to catch this

I said, "Keep trying." but it was too big for her 110-pound frame so I took the rod and fought it for about another hour and fifty minutes while she took the controls (and by the way, Maryann had never touched the controls before).

With hand signals and a harness hooked to the rod, we managed to bring the fish to gaff. Now, getting the fish aboard was a task; after trying to get on the swimstep had failed, I had to tail rope the fish and use the dingy davit to pick it up and put it in the cockpit.

After looking how big this fish was and how just the two of us with no crew had managed to board this fish, I began to think a little about life as a fisherman.

be fully implemented.

The department and commission have a long-standing track record of utilizing adaptive management principals not just within biology frameworks, but also within public administration venues as well." said Ordway. "When it comes to hunting within municipalities, we expect to adapt and evolve while working cooperatively with other government entities and our outdoor stakeholders.

Detailed regulations and boundaries are anticipated to be available in mid-July at www.azgfd.gov.

boat into a brush thicket and working the bait vertically instead of horizontally to keep the lure from grabbing a limb instead of a fish. Big bass are in the brush from the shoreline to 25 feet.

Smallmouth are on the rocky terraces and ledges also at 20-25 feet. Tubes, grubs and senkos are working well now when the bait gets in the correct depth zone. Try to keep the bait at last 20 feet deep for best results. Black and watermelon green colors are working well for bass.

Walleye are the surprise fish for this time of year. Slow warming has kept walleye active longer than normal. The best way to find walleye is to work the shoreline where brush is evident. Look for the deep slot leading to the cove. Fish plastic grubs or live night crawlers slowly along the deep slot where walleye are stationed scanning for food moving from one side of the brush canyon to the other.

Catfish have taken off and will be caught each evening on the sandy beach near your camp. Bluegills are in the brush along the shoreline. The lake level continues to increase in dramatic fashion. The big inflow and flooded brush means there will be good survival of small fish, which leads to good fishing for the coming years.

At press time, lake elevation was 3,647 and water temperature was 74-78F
